

MONASTERY ON PILGRIMAGE ROUTE

The proposal of a monastery, a small brewery and accommodation for pilgrims works with completion of the baroque courtyard with three houses, they are functionally separated from each other to ensure the comfort of their users, due to the diversity of their needs.

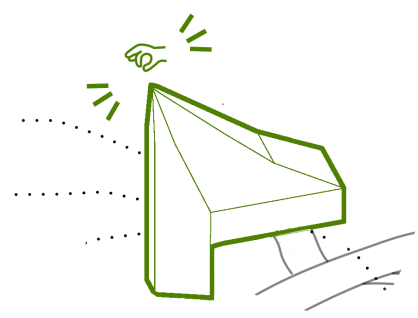

The west gate of the courtyard is formed by the accommodation for pilgrims and the brewery, which are perched perpendicular to the road and thus welcome their visitors. In form and material they follow local vernacular architecture, the entrances opening onto a public courtyard.

The heart of the courtyard is a small pond, around which winds a sequence of footpaths, some paved with irregular paving, others just mown.

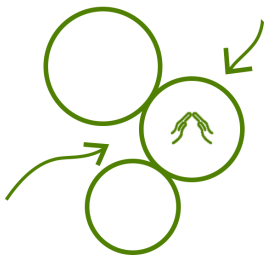

Opposite the tranquil pond is an orchard to the north of the courtyard, which is used by visitors to relax, lie in hammocks among the trees, or watch the horses at the nearby stables.

The monastery and chapel are set back from the main road behind the pond, to provide peace, quiet and privacy for the monks who live there. At the same time, the monastery is tucked into the terrain, where it is connected underground with a chapel for the use of the monks.

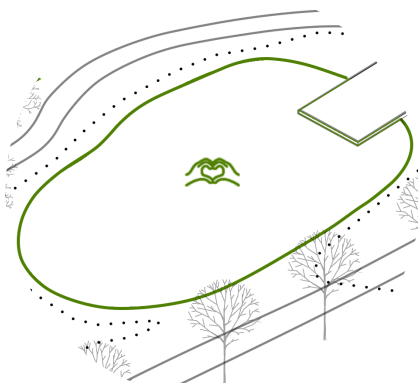

The chapel is accessible to pilgrims on the ground floor. In the lower floor the monastery has a character of a white brick wall, keeping distance from outsiders. The upper floors, where monks live are warmed up by wood. The chapel is following this path with interior and exterior.
